Almost 30 participants of the German Jordanian University staff finished the requirements of Innovation Ambassador Program which aims at capacity building and innovation management at GJU through training workshops for employees and spreading the innovation and entrepreneurship culture in the community.

The program ran intensive workshops and training sessions to develop participants' skills in innovation and project management, and provide technical support and consultation for the teams to ensure the success of their projects and achieve their goals.

GJU Ranks First in Innovation Criterion Among Jordanian Universities

The German Jordanian University ranked first in the innovation criterion, third locally among Jordanian universities, and 679th globally according to the (Scimago) World Classification of Educational Institutions for 2022, hence occupying an advanced position within the best first quarter (Q1) among the world universities.

Scimago Foundation for universities worldwide conducts annually this impartial classification. It is based on three main pillars of assessment; scientific research by 50%, innovation by 30%, and societal impact by 20%.

The President of GJU, Prof. Ala'aldeen Al-Halhouli indicated that this achievement confirms and enhances the strategic vision of the university for 2022 and beyond, to be internationally recognized as an Applied science university, to be a leader in education, research, innovation, and entrepreneurship, through the Deanship of Innovation, Technology Transfer and Entrepreneurship (DIE.TECH) that was recently established at the university.

Dr. Al-Halhouli added that the university's applied approach, the German dimension, such as building solid partnerships with German universities, factories, and companies and involving students and staff in cultural exchange programs in Germany, contributed to achieving this accomplishment.
