Beiträge zu einer zukunftsfähigen Gesellschaft

Anbahnung und Planung

Mehrfach beginnt alles mit einer schnellen E-Mail: Dr.-Ing. Jumana Ma'touq von der Deutsch-Jordanischen Universität (GJU) in Amman meldet sich mit einer Idee bei Prof. Peter P. Pott vom Institut für Medizingerätechnik (IMT). Die Fakultät für Biomedizinische Technik der GJU möchte einen Austausch mit Deutschland initiieren. Der Deutsche Akademische Austauschdienst (DAAD) hat mit dem Tazü-Programm eine passende Fördermöglichkeit geschaffen. Das Ziel: Ein praktisches Austauschprogramm, das jordanischen Studierenden Einblicke in die deutsche Industrielandschaft und Arbeitskultur bietet, während deutsche Studierende neuen fachlichen Input und interkulturelle Kompetenz erwerben können.

Nach intensiver Planung entsteht ein vielversprechendes Konzept: Ein Workshop in Stuttgart und ein Hackathon in Jordanien. Der Vorschlag wird beim DAAD positiv aufgenommen und Peter Pott fährt nach Bonn, um sich beim DAAD über die organisatori-

Workshop in Stuttgart

Anfang November 2024 ist es so weit: zehn Studierende, Dr.-Ing. Ma'You, Prof. Dr. Alwakid, und zwei wissenschaftliche Mitarbeiterinnen der GJU besuchen Stuttgart. Das vierwöchige Programm bietet eine Kombination aus Fachwissen und praktischer Erfahrung. Neben Vorträgen zu aktuellen Themen der Biomedizinischen Technik stehen Hands-On-Workshops zu Kreativmethoden und zur Entwicklungsmethodik auf dem Programm. Zudem gibt es Tipps zur Erstellung spannender Präsentationen und Vorträge. Ein Referat der Arbeitstaggenieur informiert über Karrieremöglichkeiten und Industriepraktika in Deutschland. Highlights sind der Firmenbesuch bei Philips, die ARINA 2026, der Makerspace der Uni Stuttgart sowie das gemeinsame klassische deutsche Abendbrot und der Spaziergang im Wald beim Campus Vaihingen.

Ausblick

Der erfolgreiche Austausch bildet die Grundlage für eine nachhaltige Zusammenarbeit. Ein Memorandum von Understanding soll unterzeichnet werden, das es zukünftig für Studierende einfacher machen wird, ein Semester im jeweils anderen Land zu verbringen - und für 2025 ist bereits ein neues Projekt in Planung. Zudem ist ein erstes gemeinsames wissenschaftliches Paper entstanden. Auch der Studiengang Biomedizinische Technik an der GJU wird von dem Erfahrungsaustausch profitieren, denn eine umfassende Evaluierung und Weiterentwicklung stehen auf der Agenda. Damit ist der Grundstein für eine langfristige akademische Kooperation gelegt. Der DAAD ermöglicht mit seinen Förderprogrammen so den unkomplizierten Austausch auf der wichtigsten Ebene: der direkten Kommunikation zwischen Ingenieur:innen von morgen.

Hackathon in Jordanien

Anfang Dezember 2024 geht es für fünf deutsche Studierende, einen Doktoranden und Peter Pott nach Jordanien. Ziel ist der GJU-Außencampus in Madaba, etwa 30 Kilometer südlich von Amman. Der moderne Campus bietet mit seinem Innovation Space ideale Bedingungen für den Hackathon. Gemeinsam mit rund 30 jordanischen Studierenden arbeiten die Teilnehmenden an einer zentralen Herausforderung: der Entwicklung und Gamification eines kleinen Rehabilitationsergötzens für Finger, Handgelenk, Ellbogen und Schulter. Dazu nutzen sie Arduino, Laser-Cutting, 3D-Druck und jede Menge Kreativität.

Foto rechts: Robin Marfisi

Der Tagesablauf ist strukturiert: Vormittags gibt es Fachvorträge, nachmittags wird in gemischten Gruppen gearbeitet. Dabei entstehen innovative Lösungen und gleichzeitig entwickeln sich enge interkulturelle Freundschaften. Ein besonderer Programmpunkt ist der Besuch bei der Prothesenfirma MAFAZ in Amman. Am Ende präsentiert jede Gruppe ihr Ergebnis aus dem Hackathon im Rahmen einer großen Farewell Party.

Neben der intensiven Arbeit bleibt Zeit für kulturelle Erlebnisse: Ein Ausflug ans Tote Meer, ein Besuch des Berg Nebel sowie der Weihnachtsmarkt in Amman stehen auf dem Plan. Der Freitag ist als freier Tag reserviert, den die Gruppe für eine unvergessliche Tour in die nabatäische Ruinenstätte Petra nutzt.
